Chef's return to Paddo Inn; cocktails on the wharf and the new Grounds in the city

Grilling Matt Moran

Matt Moran returns to his roots after two decades, or rather to his place behind the grill. The Paddington Inn, at Oxford and William streets, was the first big kitchen run by the celebrity chef. Now he's overseeing the new Paddo Inn Bar and Grill, open for lunch Friday to Sunday and dinner Wednesday to Sunday. Think upscale surf and turf.

Molo with drop of Italy

For an Italian wine bar experience on the Sydney waterfront, Woolloomooloo Wharf now has Molo, a pop-up wine bar alongside the Manta Restaurant, just down Cowper Wharf Rd. From noon to 11pm, Molo will feature Italian wines and cocktails with matched small bites and a menu of larger shared dishes.

From the pages of an Orwell novel

If you loved Love, Tilly Devine, a new wine bar by the same team has sprung up in Potts Point's Orwell St, called Dear Sainte Eloise. The name is taken from a George Orwell novel, in a nod to the street name, and the wine list features 350 choices from Europe to South Africa to closer to home. Open Tuesday to Thursday 5pm to midnight, Friday and Saturday 12 noon to midnight, and Sundays 12 noon to 6pm.

Hollywood to the Hills

Two Aussies who have broken into the LA scene with their E.P and L.P restaurant and bar are headed to The Dolphin on Crown St, Surry Hills, for a friendly takeover during the Queen's Birthday Long Weekend. Louis Tikaram and Grant Smilie will be in charge of the kitchen, DJ decks and entire Dolphin venue from 5-10pm on Sunday June 11.

Hit the Grounds running

Entrepreneurs Ramsey Choker and Jack Hanna, (above) have opened the new Grounds of the City in the CBD, right inside The Galleries, at 500 George St. Following the success of The Grounds of Alexandria, which opened in 2012, the Grounds of the City does breakfast and lunch everyday, and is open late on Thursdays.
